SHIP BOARD ACTS TO CUT INSURANCE COST IN HALF

The United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation will save 50 per cent in overhead costs of handling claims for personal injury. sickness, damage to cargoes, immigration fines and other liabilities, not included in ordinary marine insurgration fines and other liabilities, not included in ordinary marine insurance, by a new insurance arrangement just made, it was announced Thursday by Commissioner Lissner. According to his announcement, a contract has been made with the newly organized United States Protective and Indemnity Agency of New York, in lieu of the former contract with the American Steamship Owners' Protective and Indemnity Association, which will expire February 20.

The Shipping Board paid into the Steamship Owners' Association last year about $5,000,000 in premiums, but later reduced this expense about $2,000,000 by withdrawing insurance for its idle fleet.

"Under the new arrangement," Mr. Lissner stated, "the Emergency Fleet Corporation will carry its own insurance, just as is already done with regard to all other government insurance risks. Losses will be paid out of funds appropriated by Congress for maintenance of the Emergency Fleet Corporation as a shipbuilding concern. The United States Protective and Indemnity Agency will serve only as a loss adjustment agency." ncluded in ordinary marine insurtrol and Regulation, View of Col. Davis.

Prediction that commercial aviation projects with airships and airplanes plying between the larger being with the enactment of federal legislation establishing uniform air laws was made today by Col. W. Jefferson Davis, counsel for the newly formed National Aeronautic Association and a member of the aviation committee of the American Bar Assocommittee of the American Bar Association.

Col. Davis represented the War Department as special counsel at the congress on international aviation legislation at Prague and is now in Washington co-operating with congressional committees on the proposed federal bill governing aeronautics. While in Europe for the War Department Col. Davis was attached to the American embassy at Berlin as legal adviser to the military attache and, after the conclusion of his detail, made an extensive study for the American Bar Association of civil aviation in Great Britain, France and Italy.

"Commercial aviation," he added,
"has long since passed the experimental stage and there is immediate necessity for well defined laws governing aeronautics. Early action by Congress will have a marked effect in the development of a new mercial enterprise.

"The airplane," he concluded, "will be a most important link in future national defense."

Commercial Flying Looks to Con- Measure Carries Total of $294. 000,000-$1,655,000 for D. C. Institutions.

Purchase by the government of the land now occupied by the federal fuel yard, at Canal and H streets southcities of the country will spring into east, and addition to it of the reservation on Half street southeast. which extends north of I street, is provided under an amendment to the Interior Department appropriation bill adopted in the House late yesterday. The appropriation for the up-keep of the yard for the coming fiscal year is reduced to $254,088.

A total of $1,655,000 for institutions in the District have been approved by the House in this bill. These appro-priations include $172,800 for Freed-men's Hospital, $232,000 for Howard University, $104,000 for Columbia In-stitution for the Deaf and $1,146,500 for St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Bill Carries $294,000,000. An attempt by Representative Lowrey of Mississippi to strike from the bill the appropriations for How ard University failed on a point of order by Representative Louis C. Cramton of Michigan, in charge of and Italy.

"Commercial aviation," he added.

Col. Davis stated that "Congress is faced with the immediate necessity of enacting federal legislation providing for uniform air laws. The only surprising thing is that this country, a pioneer in flying, should be so long without vision in solving fundamental questions of jurisprudence for the control and regulation of flying. Such a federal bill, if passed, will become the charter for civil aviation and will be a basis for the control and sovereignty which the federal government can, and should, properly exert over the air.

"In 1917 the nervous energy of the American people expressed itself in preparing its young manhood for service at the front. In the immediate future this same energy and activity should be expressed in training the youth and talent of the country for cefficient service in the air, not only for national defense, but for commercial enterprise.

"The airplane," he concluded, "will be a wast immediate, in future this and their for commercial enterprise.
